

SAVE the DATE:

Aging Communities and Economic Challenges in Uncertain Times

A Conversation Across Disciplines Conference

(Registration forms will be available in January 2010)

March 10, 2010

8:30 AM – 4:30 PM
Wang Center, Rm 201

Fee: $25.00
(includes lunch)

This program is brought to you through funding from:

The State University of New York

The Long Island Geriatric
Education Center Consortium

Project Collaboration from:
Stony Brook University
Buffalo State

The University of Rochester

The University at Albany
SUNY Brockport

The Finger Lakes Geriatric
Education Center

The Consortium of New York
Geriatric Education Centers

Featuring Keynote Address by Robert Binstock, PhD
Case Western Reserve University

Join us for this timely SUNY conference. We are pleased to provide an opportunity for interdisciplinary dialogue focused on the challenges posed by our aging communities in uncertain economic times.

Individual sessions address various issues related to aging communities:

- Demographic Change and Economic Implications for Policy
- Economic Recession and Impact on Health Care and Services
- Workforce Issues
- Aging Communities: Implications for Individuals and Families
- Needs of Vulnerable Senior Populations.

Panelists are nationally recognized scholars, clinicians, and policy makers from the fields of economics, public health, medicine, gerontology, social work, nursing, and health and human services representing four SUNY campuses, New York's three federally-funded Geriatric Education Centers, the NYS Office for the Aging, and prominent health and human service organizations.

For more information contact:
The Long Island Geriatric Education Center
email: LIGEC@Stonybrook.edu Phone: 631-444-8279